ENGLISH, PH.D.

Graduate Handbook (http://www.slu.edu/arts-and-sciences/english/pdfs/englishgraduatehandbook.pdf)

As a graduate student in Saint Louis University’s Department of English, you will receive scholarly training in English language and literature. Encountering courses that span the full experience of works in the English language — from Old Norse to Mark Twain and Gertrude Stein, and from Chaucer and Shakespeare to contemporary and postcolonial writing — you will have the chance to pursue specializations in a variety of literary fields and in the study of rhetoric and composition.

The Ph.D. in English program is responsive to interdisciplinary interests and to all of the theoretical discourses that connect the study of English language and literature to other literatures and cultures. As a student in the program, you will be equipped with the disciplines and methods of linguistic and literary analysis that will prepare you professionally for the career you seek.

Our Ph.D. in English students bring a diversity of perspectives and interests to our graduate classes. As a student in the English Ph.D. program, you will have many opportunities for close interactions with other students and faculty. Graduate students studying English at SLU also run more than six student organizations.

Curriculum Overview

All English Ph.D. candidates must display reading proficiency in one modern foreign language relevant to their research. Students concentrating in medieval or renaissance literature also need to demonstrate competence in either Latin or classical Greek. All doctoral students must also take courses in three out of five required areas. Current doctoral tracks include:

- Anglo-Saxon and medieval literature
- Medieval and early 16th-century British literature
- Early modern British literature
- The British long 19th century
- 19th-century American literature
- Modern Irish literature
- 20th-century British literature and cultural contexts
- 20th- and 21st-century American literature
- Transatlantic modernisms
- Contemporary postcolonial/non-Western literatures and cultures
- Rhetoric and composition
- Life writing

Fieldwork and Research Opportunities

Saint Louis University’s English department is affiliated with the Walter J. Ong Center for Digital Humanities. In addition to participating in various writing programs, including University Writing Services, the English faculty and graduate students participate in departmental research colloquia and reading groups.

SLU also hosts the journal African American Review as well as the New Chaucer Society, the world’s leading scholarly organization in medieval literature and culture.

Careers

Recent graduates with a Ph.D. in English from SLU have accepted tenure-track faculty positions at Creighton University, University of Central Florida, University of Detroit-Mercy, Missouri University of Science and Technology (Rolla), Truman State University and University of North Texas, Dallas.

Ph.D. graduates who pursued non-academic paths have accepted positions such as document analyst at the National Geospatial-Intelligence Agency, corporate training manager at Enterprise Holdings and the director of research communication at Washington University’s School of Medicine.

Admission Requirements

Most admitted students meet the following criteria:

- Creative and ambitious with high levels of academic distinction and sophistication, at well-regarded colleges and universities with rigorous B.A./M.A. programs.
- High GPA (3.7 and above in English).
- Scored at or above the 90th percentile on the Verbal portion and/or 4.5 or above on the Essay portion of the GRE General Test.
- Identified fields/areas of intended study, possible thesis/dissertation topics, and specific faculty in the department with whom students might wish to work.
- A professional goal statement that aligns well with the curricula the department offers. The statement should be no more than 750 words and should lay out professional and intellectual goals as well as the interest in graduate studies in English. While plans may change, this statement will help the department assess the grasp of the field and the ability to describe ideas coherently and compellingly. The statement should address:
  - The specific field of English studies that students are interested in.
  - How students would like to contribute to existing research and criticism in an area of interest.
  - The critical and scholarly approaches to literature students have found most productive.
  - The faculty members students would prefer to work with.
- Sufficient TOEFL score (for international students).

Transferring into the Doctoral Program

Applications by SLU M.A. students seeking to transfer into the doctoral program are made by separate application at the beginning of the spring semester of the master’s candidate’s second year following a protocol described in the English Department Graduate Handbook.

Both internal and external applicants to the Ph.D. program are strongly encouraged to have completed, or be in the process of completing, a master’s thesis or to have undertaken another outsized research project as part of their M.A. studies, since the ability to independently frame and conduct a major research project will be demanded of them as doctoral students.

Application Requirements

- Application form and fee
- Transcript(s)
- Three letters of recommendation assessing potential in graduate studies
Learning Outcomes

1. Graduates will be able to demonstrate a broad knowledge of literary histories, aesthetics, cultures, and emerging areas of inquiry, including an awareness of cultural diversity within literary traditions.

2. Graduates will be able to demonstrate proficiency in formulating written and spoken arguments situated within a historical or methodological field of study, as defined in the sections of the department’s Graduate Handbook covering Ph.D. exams.

3. Graduates will be able to demonstrate the ability to write and present papers or their equivalent within professional contexts.

4. Graduates will be able to demonstrate the ability to conceptualize, develop, and bring to successful completion an original, sustained, and coherent independent research project (e.g., the dissertation) that contributes to one’s field of specialization.

5. Graduates will be able to demonstrate the skills necessary for teaching at the undergraduate level.

6. Graduates will be able to demonstrate an ability to generate degree-appropriate job search materials.

Requirements

Students are required to take a minimum of 24 credits in English course work beyond the M.A. Six credits may be taken at the 4000-level. ENGL 5000 Methods of Literary Research (3 cr), ENGL 5010 Teaching Writing (3 cr), and ENGL 5110 Literary Theory (3 cr) are required of all students who have not taken equivalent courses in another program as part of their prior training.

Distributive Requirements

Beyond these courses, Ph.D. candidates who have taken course work in four of the five following fields as Master’s students need only take 9 of 24 required credits in three of the five fields as part of their doctoral course work. Doctoral students who have not met the threshold Master’s level criterion must take 12 credits in four of the following five fields:

- Anglo-Saxon and/or Medieval Literature
- Renaissance/Early Modern Literature (ca. 1500-1800)
- Literature of the Long 19th Century (ca. 1789-1914): British, American, African American, or Transatlantic
- Modern and/or Contemporary Literature: British, Irish, American, African American, Transatlantic, or Postcolonial
- Rhetoric and/or Composition exclusive of ENGL 5010 Teaching Writing (3 cr)

In addition, all Ph.D. students, after their first year, must distribute registrations for 12 credits of ENGL.6990 Dissertation Research over several terms.

Non-Course Requirements

Language Requirement

Before taking their comprehensive exams, all Ph.D. candidates must display reading proficiency in one modern foreign language relevant to their research. Students concentrating in medieval or renaissance literature also need to demonstrate competence in either Latin or Classical Greek.

Doctoral Competency Exam

Ph.D. candidates take a Doctoral Competency Exam, that has written and oral components and is described in the English Department Graduate Handbook.

Public Defense

Completed dissertations are assessed by the student’s committee and are formally accepted after a public defense.

Continuation Standards

Students must maintain a cumulative grade point average (GPA) of 3.00 in all graduate/professional courses.
Roadmap

Roadmaps are recommended semester-by-semester plans of study for programs and assume full-time enrollment unless otherwise noted.

Courses and milestones designated as critical (marked with !) must be completed in the semester listed to ensure a timely graduation. Transfer credit may change the roadmap.

This roadmap should not be used in the place of regular academic advising appointments. All students are encouraged to meet with their advisor/mentor each semester. Requirements, course availability and sequencing are subject to change.

Program Notes

Students who have taken graduate coursework in four of the five following fields as master's students, beyond completing ENGL 5000 Methods of Literary Research (3 cr), ENGL 5010 Teaching Writing (3 cr), and ENGL 5110 Literary Theory (3 cr), need only take 9 (of 24 required) hours in three of the five fields as part of their doctoral coursework. Doctoral students who have not met the threshold master's level criterion must take 12 (of 24 required) hours in four of the following five fields:

1. Anglo-Saxon and/or Medieval Literature (3 hrs.)
2. Renaissance / Early Modern Literature (c. 1500-1800) (3 hrs.)
3. Literature of the long 19th century (c. 1789-1914): British, American, African American, or Transatlantic (3 hrs.)
4. Modern and/or contemporary literature: British, Irish, American, African American, Transatlantic, or Postcolonial (3 hrs.)
5. Rhetoric and/or Composition exclusive of ENGL 5010 Teaching Writing (3 cr)

Prior to taking his/her qualifying examinations, every student in the doctoral program must certify a reading competence in scholarship drawn from one modern foreign language relevant to his/her literary study. French, German, and Spanish are the modern languages in which the university has been able to provide regular support and instruction, but other relevant languages are equally acceptable. Additional language competence is required of students working in Medieval or Early Modern British Literature, who must demonstrate their ability to read literature written in Latin, classical Greek, or, upon special request, Hebrew.

There are four ways to demonstrate reading competence in a foreign language:

1. By documenting reading competence as an M.A. student.
2. By performing satisfactorily in an accelerated reading course by the Department of Languages, Literatures, & Cultures.
3. By successfully completing a 4000-level course in the Department of Languages, Literatures, & Cultures.
4. Through a two-hour examination administered by the English department and graded by the Department of Languages, Literatures, & Cultures.
