Overview
The Center for Medieval and Renaissance Studies supports, coordinates, and promotes the extraordinary array of scholars, students, and resources devoted to medieval and early modern research at Saint Louis University.

One of the largest resources of its kind in the country, the center is home to more than 50 full-time faculty members. By supporting students, conferences, speakers, fellowships, library acquisitions, and professorships, the center enriches the intellectual environment for medievalists and early modernists on campus and across the region.

It combines the resources of the University's departments of English, fine and performing arts, history, philosophy, theological studies, and languages, literatures and cultures, a collaboration built upon the collections of the Vatican Film Library and the Rare Book Collection.

The center offers an undergraduate major, an undergraduate minor and a graduate concentration in medieval studies. In addition, the center sponsors lectures, seminars, conferences, workshops and research opportunities both on campus and through the Newberry Library Consortium.

Each year, the center brings a wide range of scholars to campus to use the extensive collections in the Pius XII Memorial Library under the auspices of the NEH Research Fellowship Program. The center's director and affiliated faculty are available to help students fashion independent programs of study and research within the context of their major departments.
