SPEECH, LANGUAGE, AND HEARING SCIENCES, MINOR

A speech, language and hearing sciences minor at Saint Louis University is an introduction to speech-language pathology and audiology.

The minor is most helpful to students interested in a health care or educational setting, including those majoring in physical therapy (https://catalog.slu.edu/colleges-schools/health-sciences/physical-therapy-athletic-training/physical-therapy-program/), occupational therapy (https://catalog.slu.edu/colleges-schools/health-sciences/occupational-science-therapy/occupational-therapy-program/), education (https://catalog.slu.edu/colleges-schools/education/undergraduate-programs/education-ba/) and special education. Students must complete a minimum of 17 credits to complete the speech, language and hearing sciences minor.
