

HEALTH CARE QUALITY AND PERFORMANCE EXCELLENCE, POST-BACCALAUREATE CERTIFICATE

Saint Louis University's health care quality and performance excellence graduate certificate is for students who want to focus on areas of health operations management, including quality improvement, process improvement, performance excellence and project management.

Health care organizations need to find ways to reduce costs while improving quality. Employers need employees with the analytical and content skills that this certificate provides. SLU's quality and performance excellence graduate certificate program applies to all resident Master of Health Administration (M.H.A.) (<https://catalog.slu.edu/colleges-schools/public-health-social-justice/graduate-programs/health-administration-mha/>) students who are currently in the program, and it will also appeal to working professionals already in the field. As the field of quality and performance excellence grows, there will be an increasing need for an educational background in the subject.

Curriculum Overview

SLU's health care quality and performance excellence program is designed for those looking to begin their career in quality, as well as those who have been working in the health care field and need to expand their knowledge in quality and performance excellence.

Fieldwork and Research Opportunities

Required courses may involve applied projects, however there is no additional fieldwork required for the certificate overall.
