Description
Saint Louis University's College for Public Health and Social Justice (CPHSJ) is committed to a strong Jesuit tradition of caring and advocating for the underserved and marginalized.

Each major requires a minimum of 120 credits for graduation. Field exposure, elective internships, immersion trips, and the opportunity to study on the Madrid Campus are additional features of the undergraduate program.

A School of Public Health was established at SLU in 1991, and undergraduate degree programs in public health and health management date back to 2007. The current Saint Louis University's College for Public Health and Social Justice was established in 2013. It comprises three departments that administer the academic programs and conduct state-of-the-art research.

Mission
The mission of the College for Public Health and Social Justice is to pursue health, well-being and social justice for and with communities through nationally renowned teaching and research, practical applications of knowledge, and authentic partnerships inspired by our Jesuit tradition and identity.

Accreditation
Saint Louis University's College for Public Health and Social Justice is fully accredited by the Council on Education for Public Health (CEPH).
