

CRIMINOLOGY AND CRIMINAL JUSTICE, B.A.

The Bachelor of Arts in Criminology and Criminal Justice (CCJ) at Saint Louis University incorporates an interdisciplinary perspective to examine the causes and correlates of criminal behavior, as well as the institutions that respond to such behavior. A degree in criminology and criminal justice provides a comprehensive academic foundation into the nature of criminal offending, victimization, law enforcement, court administration, the law, and both community and institutional corrections.

Consistent with Saint Louis University's Jesuit tradition (<https://www.slu.edu/about/catholic-jesuit-identity/>), the criminology and criminal justice program seeks to strengthen the criminal justice systems and, more importantly, communities, by focusing on the factors that cause crime and violence and on the humanity of victims, offenders and practitioners. This major is a good fit for students interested in legal studies, law enforcement at the local, state or federal levels and working with adults and/or juveniles in correctional settings, as well as those pursuing graduate education or a law degree.

Faculty within the program are great mentors and easy to connect with. Each professor I have had has always been more than willing to meet with me whether to answer any questions about the course or for any career advice." —Kalie Yeager-Thompson, Class of 2021

Program Highlights

- SLU's B.A. in Criminology and Criminal Justice is innovative in its approach to improving the justice system by focusing on the humanity of those involved in and impacted by crime and violence in communities.
- The program challenges and engages students intellectually with the latest in criminological and criminal justice theory, research and practice.
- The major offers students the opportunity to live what they learn through compassionate service.

Curriculum Overview

SLU's criminology and criminal justice curriculum covers a wide array of topics including theories of crime, criminal justice ethics, law enforcement, corrections, legal procedures and criminal justice research. In addition, students tailor the major to their individual needs and interests by selecting from elective courses focused on criminal justice systems and those examining the nature of crime.

The B.A. in Criminology and Criminal Justice requires a minimum of 120 credits for graduation. The program offers coursework that provides students with a foundation for understanding the causes and correlates of crime and the systems that respond to criminal and delinquent behavior. The program's unique focus on human justice supports students' understanding of the humanity of all who are involved in the justice system including victims, offenders and practitioners. Through rigorous academic coursework, students become educated consumers of information and research that can be applied to justice settings. Community-based experiential learning opportunities train students to be effective and transformative practitioners and citizens. Through the integration of scholarship and community-engaged service, students become aware of issues related to human and social justice in an increasingly diverse and globalized world.

Additional degree options include:

- Accelerated program (https://catalog.slu.edu/colleges-schools/social-work/accelerated\_ba\_maccj/): High-achieving students may apply to this selective program during their junior year of study. This accelerated program allows students to begin taking graduate-level criminology and criminal justice courses in their senior year of undergraduate studies.
- Honors (<https://www.slu.edu/honors/>) courses: The criminology and criminal justice program offers advanced coursework approved for Honors credit.
- Minor (<https://catalog.slu.edu/colleges-schools/social-work/criminology-criminal-justice-minor/>): For those pursuing other majors but who are also interested in criminology and criminal justice, the program offers a minor that provides students a foundation for understanding a variety of criminology and criminal justice professions and the core values of the field.

Fieldwork and Research Opportunities

The benefits of the program also include internships and job opportunities. Students have the opportunity to complete an internship, allowing them to gain valuable hands-on experience and make professional contacts prior to pursuing employment. Partnerships with a wide variety of agencies and organizations all over St. Louis City and St. Louis County provide students with diverse options for their internship and/or externship experiences. Placement options include working with juveniles or adults in private or public agencies at the local, state or federal level and a number of local community-based agencies working with at-risk individuals.

Saint Louis University has a strong service-learning (<https://www.slu.edu/center-for-social-action/service-learning/>) foundation. Students embody SLU's Jesuit mission (<https://www.slu.edu/about/catholic-jesuit-identity/>) by using the knowledge they gain in the classroom to serve others. Service-learning also provides valuable field experience for criminology and criminal justice students and enhances their connectedness with the St. Louis community.

Students can also volunteer at organizations around St. Louis as the criminology and criminal justice program collaborates with more than 250 social service agencies where students can explore criminology and criminal justice professions with guidance from seasoned experts.

For students interested in studying abroad there are a wide variety of programs, including a campus located in Madrid, Spain (<https://www.slu.edu/madrid/>).
