AMERICAN STUDIES (ASTD)

ASTD 1000 - Investigating America: An Introduction to American Studies
Credit(s): 3 Credits
What does it mean to be American? Is it citizenship or geographical location? Political ideals or shared culture? How does it change over time? This course introduces interdisciplinary methods to answer such questions, including analysis of images, literature, popular entertainment, and diverse experiences of race, ethnicity, gender, sexuality, and nation.
Attributes: Diversity in the US (A&S)

ASTD 1930 - Special Topics
Credit(s): 1-4 Credits (Repeatable for credit)

ASTD 1980 - Independent Study
Credit(s): 1-3 Credits (Repeatable for credit)

ASTD 2100 - Studies in American Photography
Credit(s): 3 Credits
This course introduces students to methodologies for studying American photography. Using foundational texts about photography and American Studies approaches to visual culture, we examine the cultural and political work that photographs perform at particular historical moments. We explore how photographs shape ideas about race, gender, class, nation, and citizenship.
Attributes: Fine Arts Requirement (A&S)

ASTD 2200 - American Homefronts, Global Wars
Credit(s): 3 Credits
This interdisciplinary course considers American social experiences during times of war. Throughout, we will study not the battles and factors that determined military outcomes, but the domestic struggles and international changes that have shaped American identity in a global context.
Attributes: Global Citizenship (A&S)

ASTD 2300 - Americans Abroad
Credit(s): 3 Credits
This course explores the history of the modern United States’ changing relationship with the world by tracing American activities on the global stage: as travelers, consumers, teachers, students, missionaries, soldiers, and workers. Students will examine global encounters and exchanges through a variety of primary sources, including film, photography, and memoir.
Attributes: Global Citizenship (A&S)

ASTD 2400 - Immigration in U.S. History and Culture
Credit(s): 3 Credits
This class will introduce students to U.S. immigration history, with a particular focus on immigration flows, policies, and debates from the mid-nineteenth century to the present. We will take an interdisciplinary approach to the study of immigration in U.S. culture, using a variety of sources—including photography, film, poetry, memoir, and a board game—to examine how ideas, policies, and practices regarding immigration have been tied to key concepts such as race, gender, sexuality, disease, and empire. Students will read scholarly essays and primary sources, and conclude with a short, primary-source-based independent research project.
Attributes: Diversity in the US (A&S)

ASTD 2500 - Topics in American Identities and Communities
Credit(s): 3 Credits (Repeatable up to 9 credits)
Scholars and observers have long noted the important roles that apparently marginalized or “outsider” groups play in creating an American nation and culture. Whether looking at religious outsiders, racial and ethnic minorities, or other social categories of difference and identity that define American experience, this course focuses on selected American communities to consider this often complicated and even misleading dynamic between margin and center, community and nation, insider and outsider. (Offered as needed)

ASTD 2500 - American Places
Credit(s): 3 Credits (Repeatable up to 9 credits)
Through interdisciplinary analysis, research, and writing, this course examines the role of place in shaping American culture, including race and ethnicity, gender, and class. Places may include regions (like the South, Midwest, or West), cities or suburbs, sites like internment camps or reservations, or conceptual places like frontiers and borderlands.
Attributes: Diversity in the US (A&S)

ASTD 2700 - Gender, Race, Social Justice
Credit(s): 3 Credits
Examines the intersection of gender and race with other categories of analysis (class, religion, sexuality, nation) in historical and contemporary social justice movements in the United States. Topics include role of race in movements for gender equality, as well as the impact of gender on movements for racial justice.
Attributes: Urban Poverty - General, Diversity in the US (A&S)

ASTD 2800 - Sports in American Culture
Credit(s): 3 Credits
What can watching a Cardinals game teach us about American culture? How do recreational facilities reflect or shape their local environments? Should celebrated athletes speak out on American politics? Are sports leisure or business? How have sporting contests functioned as allegories for national crises over race or gender? These questions and more form the center to this course, which uses sports as a lens to examine the diversity of American culture in terms of race, gender, sexuality, ability, and more.
Attributes: Diversity in the US (A&S)

ASTD 3000 - American Decades
Credit(s): 3 Credits (Repeatable for credit)
Close examination of a brief span of time in America as a way to reflect on intertwining currents in social, political, and intellectual life. Students explore changes and continuities in religion, philosophy, consumption, popular culture, architecture, and daily life. Course provides intensive focus on primary sources and their interpretation.
Attributes: Diversity in the US (A&S)

ASTD 3020 - American Mosaic: Literature & Diversity
Credit(s): 3 Credits
This course examines sites of actual and imagined geographies—tenements, reservations, fields, factories, ethnic enclaves—that produce ethnic literatures and articulate ethnic identities. The purpose of this course is to present a broad spectrum of ethnic American literature, and to put ethnic experiences and texts into dialogue with one another.
Attributes: Urban Poverty - Exclusion, Diversity in the US (A&S), Women's & Gender Studies
ASTD 3030 - History and Fiction
Credit(s): 3 Credits (Repeatable for credit)
This course interrogates the boundary between history and fiction; it considers literary questions of 'historical' texts, and historical questions of 'literature' for the purpose of deepening our understanding of both history and fiction.

ASTD 3040 - Religion and U.S. Global Activism
Credit(s): 3 Credits
This class explores the American history of faith and international activism. We will analyze the aims, experiences, and ethical frameworks of U.S. missionaries, reformers, and relief workers. Case studies include Christian missionaries in nineteenth-century China, Jewish relief programs in World-War-I Europe, and current debates about global feminist advocacy.
Attributes: Global Citizenship (A&S)

ASTD 3050 - American Soundscapes
Credit(s): 3 Credits (Repeatable for credit)
This course explores the role of popular music in American culture, examining how genres like the blues, jazz, country, rock, and hip-hop have provided far more than simple entertainment; indeed, for artists, fans, and critics, music has been an important mode of cultural and political expression, and meaning-making about race, gender, sexuality, and nation. Course may be repeated for credit with different subtitles.
Attributes: Diversity in the US (A&S)

ASTD 3100 - Making the American City: Culture, Space, & 20th-century U.S. Urbanisms

ASTD 3700 - America in the Global Age
Credit(s): 3 Credits
This course examines America's role in the era of rapid globalization, from the late 19th century to the present. It also considers the impact of major global events and processes on American society and culture, such as labor and capital mobility, third world insurgency, technological and environmental change.
Attributes: American Studies Contexts, Global Citizenship (A&S), Global Local Justice-Global

ASTD 3900 - Mixed-Race America
Credit(s): 3 Credits
Despite popular images of American as a 'melting' both of races and ethnicities, our institutions, values, and practices have often tried to create or maintain spatial and social distance between groups defined as racially different. This course will explore that ways in which Americans have transgressed those boundaries or found other ways of interacting across cultural lines, primarily in the 19th and 20th centuries. We will examine popular cultural perceptions of people of mixed ancestry, their social experiences, the development of various mixed-ancestry communities, and historical attempts to limit interracial socializing, relationships, and marriage. These issues were and are deeply embedded in debates over the meaning of race, gender expectations and ideas about sex and sexuality. We will also pay close attention to how minority communities have understood people of mixed ancestry in the United States, and how mixed-race identities intersect with African American, Native American, Asian, White, and Latino identities.
Attributes: Global Local Justice-Domestic, Diversity in the US (A&S)

ASTD 3910 - Service Learning Internship
Credit(s): 1-6 Credits (Repeatable for credit)
Designed to enable students to make intellectual connections between scholarship and the wider world.
