BIZ 6202 - Professional Effectiveness: Power, Politics, Influence, and Negotiation
Credit(s): 1 Credit
Power, politics, influence and negotiation is designed to introduce students to the knowledge and skills for success at both the personal and organizational levels. Considering these four phenomena influence day to day decisions and directly affect interrelations of individual actions it becomes imperative to decipher the unwritten codes of conduct, to maneuver within office politics, and effectively influence others. Offered in summer.

BIZ 6204 - Having Difficult Conversations
Credit(s): 1 Credit
This course, Having Difficult Conversations, is designed to introduce students to the knowledge, skills, and abilities needed to improve communication between themselves and constituents who are resistant to feedback and change. The course will cover a step-by-step process for initiating difficult conversations and adding additional structure at the start of the feedback process for conversations that are particularly confrontational. The course utilizes, in part, the “SWAG & SHAREe” model utilized by Saint Louis University Division of Human Resources regarding having difficult conversations with employees and managers. The importance of developing these skills is critical to addressing issues in a way that helps the other person focus on the content of the feedback, rather than focusing on the emotional and defensive reactions to the feedback. By the conclusion of the class, the student will be equipped to provide comprehensive and effective evaluation of conflict with another employee and turn negative reactions into positive performance.

BIZ 6300 - Professional Effectiveness: Managing the 5 Dysfunctions of a Team
Credit(s): 1 Credit
The focus of this course is Overcoming the Five Dysfunctions of a Team, and is based largely on Patrick Lencioni’s Five Dysfunctions of a Team model. Teams are often more than the sum of their individual parts in terms of both complexity and potential. In this course, students will learn about group dynamics and team development, as well as tips for building and maintaining healthy teams. Offered in spring.

BIZ 6301 - Professional Effectiveness: Culture-Organizational, Country of Origin, and Cultural Intelligence
Credit(s): 1 Credit
Culture: Organizational, Country of Origin, and Cultural Intelligence is designed to introduce students to the knowledge and issues that emerge at the micro (individual) and macro (organizational) levels. In this course, students will assess the culture of an organization, individual cultural intelligence, and country of origin, through cases and tools designed for this purpose. These findings will allow students to “see the world through a different set of eyes” and give them a strong base and ability to navigate the socially complexities of culturally-related idiosyncrasies faced in daily and work lives. Offered in spring.

Credit(s): 1 Credit (Repeatable for credit)
In this course, you will gain a basic understanding of your personal level of self-awareness within the larger context of intercultural communication effectiveness in doing business abroad. You will become familiar with basic intercultural tools and gain an understanding of cultural dexterity and why it is an essential skill in today's global working environment. The course is highly interactive and discussion based. Case studies will draw from intercultural interactions encountered while working abroad. Offered fall and spring as needed.

BIZ 6401 - Professional Effectiveness: Business Model Design with the Lean Canvas
Credit(s): 1 Credit
In this course, students will explore how to use a one-page business plan, known as the “Lean Canvas” to design a business model. As they flow through the “Lean Canvas” modeling process, students will learn how to ask questions, generate ideas, and test assumptions around all aspects of launching a business. Offered in spring.

BIZ 6402 - Professional Effectiveness: Simulation
Credit(s): 1 Credit
The focus of this course is on a Startup Business Simulation. Students will participate as entrepreneurs involved in creating a new business, making decisions about location, inventory, employment, and pricing. Once made, these decisions are fed into the simulation and results are generated, both as a narrative and as a set of financial and performance figures, giving the student feedback on their decisions. Students can then revise their decisions with an eye toward improving their firm’s performance. Depending on the specific simulation, these decisions may cover a week, month or longer in the life of the business. The simulation is supplemented with discussions in class and presentations by faculty and outside experts on the issues in running a business and interpreting performance results. This course will help students understand the ebb and flow of business, the relationship of the business to its market and environment, and the relationship of the business to the decisions made by the entrepreneur. Offered in spring.

BIZ 6403 - Professional Effectiveness: Due Diligence
Credit(s): 1 Credit
The focus of this course is on a due diligence. Due diligence is the process of evaluating a business’ key documents presented to current or potential stakeholders, such as business plans, SEC Form C filings, financial statements, business canvases and pitch decks. The evaluation process depends on a critical review of these documents, checking the assumptions, computations, and documentation of the businesspeople, asking questions of the businesspeople and doing additional research to test alternative hypotheses and assess the evaluator’s own ideas about the business. This course will help students understand how businesses present themselves to the world, and how to review these presentations to assess the firm’s current and projections of future performance. Offered in spring.
