IB 3100 - Geopolitics of World Business
Credit(s): 3 Credits
This course is designed to prepare students to understand how geography and politics intersect with and influence international business and multinational firms. Upon successful completion of the course, students should possess an awareness of important geopolitical facts and should be able to demonstrate the analytical and strategic thinking skills that reflect an understanding of how these facts interact with and affect international business competition. In particular, the course will examine how geographic location, natural resource endowments, historical relationships and national and institutional political factors influence global companies.
Prerequisite(s): IB 2000

IB 3140 - International e-Business
Credit(s): 3 Credits
International e-business is now emerging as an indispensable way of conducting global business. However, there is a dearth of trained professionals at multinational companies who can manage and coordinate international e-business and global digital media marketing efforts. The marketplace has a skill shortage for professionals who can effectively work with digital media content, software professionals, translators, and colleagues from different countries to implement international e-business strategy and global digital media efforts. This course will help students understand international e-business, global digital media marketing, international online market entry, issues regarding web site localization, and cultural customization. Specifically, the course provides applied knowledge to successfully use the web to tap global online markets.

IB 3160 - Cultural Differences in International Business
Credit(s): 3 Credits
Ample evidence abounds that cultures of the world are in more frequent contact as the business world becomes increasingly global. Given this globally interdependent economy, it is imperative that students understand the value of culture when conducting business across boundaries. This course examines the concept of “culture” as it applies in an international business context. Among those topics discussed are communicating and negotiating across cultures, the impact of culture on global alliances and strategy, and multicultural teams in international organizations. Classroom discussions are based on text readings as well as specific country-based cases.
