THEO 1980 - Independent Study
Credit(s): 1-3 Credits
This course centers around the genre of historical and autobiographical narrative as a way of getting at the ultimate questions at the heart of theology and religion. In dialogue with Jewish and Christian scripture, as well as classic and contemporary spiritual autobiographies written from within the Christian tradition and beyond, students will wrestle with the nature of faith; the nature, existence, and personhood of God; the nature and ends of creation and human life; evil and salvation; and other matters of ultimate concern. Through the narrative, this course will address questions that matter most to the arc of human life.
Prerequisite(s): CORE 1500*

* Concurrent enrollment allowed.

THEO 1659 - Close Textual Readings: Theology Slowed Down
Credit(s): 3 Credits
This course introduces students to major questions of human nature pertaining to God and religion and to Christianity's answers to these questions. Organized into six units/questions, it emphasizes a particularly Catholic, Jesuit perspective on these questions. It encourages students to think through difficult questions with careful reflection on texts, based on the premise that reading great texts can change how we think about ourselves and our world in impactful ways. Each student will thus enhance his or her critical thinking and skills through reading assignments, discussion, and reflection on these discussions through long-form writing assignments.
Prerequisite(s): CORE 1500*

* Concurrent enrollment allowed.

Attributes: Catholic Studies-Theology, Theology BA Requirement (A&S), Theology-Religious Ethics

THEO 3540 - Incarceration and Incarnation: Prisons and Christian Ethics
Credit(s): 3 Credits
This course examines incarceration in the U.S. in light of the incarnation, theological anthropology, and Christian ethics. One aim will be to understand various themes related to incarceration: the school to prison pipeline, race, legislation, policing, prisons and labor, justice, punishment, and reintegration. Another aim will be to consider how belief in an incarnate God, who died a criminal death, shapes Christian views of and responses to incarceration in the U.S. today. We will draw on those who have written theology behind bars (Thoreau, Bonhoeffer, M.L.K., Jr., etc.). Local concerns will be our focus throughout.
Prerequisite(s): (THEO 1000 or THEO 1600)
Attributes: Law, Religion and Politics, Theology BA Requirement (A&S)
THEO 3560 - A Post Human Future? The Ethics of Technology
Credit(s): 3 Credits

THEO 3750 - Creativity and Constraint: The Legal Imagination in Judaism
Credit(s): 3 Credits
Professional lawyers and jurists today often conceive of the law as an instrument of social policy. In Judaism, however, this view of law amounts to looking through the wrong end of a telescope. More than a tool for achieving practical goals, law is the very bedrock of Jewish self and society. Law, a direct link to God, is also a unique vessel for creativity across millennia of Jewish history. Our course trains students in key methods for analyzing this bond between law and Jewish life.
Prerequisite(s): (THEO 1000 or THEO 1600)

Designed to foster a scholarly self-consciousness and encourage students’ investment in the most pressing debates and conversations in the field, this course aims to shape students as critical rhetors prepared to do advanced research that is at once sophisticated and significant. Offered in spring.

THEO 6010 - Methods in Historical Theology
Credit(s): 3 Credits
Historical Theology is an interdisciplinary project, which employs the intellectual tools and skills of historical research to examine what Anselm of Canterbury called "faith seeking understanding." Yet history and theology -- as academic disciplines -- are not monolithic in structure or univocal in expression. This seminar will introduce students to issues and questions that have dominated historiographical debates over the last five centuries and explore how these have been influenced by, and have influenced, theological discourse. Knowledge of historiography, its theory and practice, is an invaluable aid to scholars studying theological discourse in its past context and current application. Offered every fall.

THEO 6020 - Christianity in Antiquity Survey
Credit(s): 3 Credits
