

3.7 STUDENT ORGANIZATION FINANCIAL OPERATIONS AND STUDENT FUNDRAISING POLICY

Saint Louis University expects all student organizations to be conscientious and responsible financial stewards. This includes appropriate management of University funds, including any and all allocations from Student Fees, individually collected dues, and/or donated or fundraised monies. There are several structures in place which promote both training and education for the leaders of these organizations, and professional staff who are available to assist with their organization's financial management. The following guidance applies to all types of student organizations, including Registered, Developing and/or Chartered.

Student Organizations are assigned a University operating fund, which permits them to do financial business under the name of "Saint Louis University." (Note: DSO fund numbers will be transitioned and remain with the organization when they become Chartered. In the case of RSOs, the fund number will be created within their sponsoring department's organization).

There may be unique circumstances when a student organization finds it advantageous to maintain an additional bank account, outside of the University's operating account, in order to conduct business. Managing an external account creates inherently greater risk and liability for the University, the organization, and its officers, and these accounts often lack the supportive administrative infrastructure and staff oversight of university operating funds. However, if the student organization decides to open an external account, it should be done within the following guidelines:

- The account should be opened at the US Bank branch, located on campus in the Busch Student Center.
- The student organization may utilize the University's EIN to register their account.
- The account should have a minimum of three representatives listed on the account, one of which is required to be the University advisor on record for the organization.
- As part of the organization's leadership transition process, the transition plan must include a trip to the bank to remove outgoing leadership and approve new account representatives.

Please note that managing an external bank account for a student organization is a major responsibility. Individuals who violate campus policies or State of Missouri law may be subject to on and/or off-campus accountability measures. Egregious misuse and mismanagement of an external bank account may also result in recognition consequences for the student organization.

Many of the specific financial procedures for student organizations (i.e. budgeting, spending, reimbursements, reserving a Procurement Card, etc) can be found in SLU Groups. CSOs will receive training on these procedures, and more, during SGA's sponsored Leaders of the Pack training workshop in the fall semester.

Student Organizations will be permitted to utilize the University's tax exempt status for related purchases and expenses. To obtain a copy of the University's tax exempt documentation, please contact the Student Involvement Center at involvement@slu.edu. (involvement@slu.edu)

There are multiple ways an organization may utilize and access monies from their University fund:

1. Request a University Procurement Card: Select departments and units have University issued credit cards for the purpose of University purchasing. Student Organizations may request use of these cards, and with appropriate permission, the transaction can be reconciled to their University fund.
 - a. It is important for students to know that University Procurement Card transactions must be tax-free. If a purchase is made with tax included, they will be asked to return to the vendor to reprocess the transaction as tax free purchase. If taxes remain on the transaction, the student organization is responsible for repaying the taxed amount to their SGA and/or Internal account.
 - b. There are restrictions on the type of transaction and/or purchase which can be made on a University Procurement Card. Please consult the University's Purchasing Card Policy (<https://www.slu.edu/business-finance/departments-and-offices/central-processing-center/card-programs.php#:~:text=All%20purchases%20made%20using%20the,during%20any%20and%20all%20audits&text=The%20GP%2Dcard%20is%20not,not%20use%20the%20GP%2Dcard>) if you have questions about your purchase.
2. Reimbursement Request: Students may decide to make organizational-related purchases, utilizing their own financial resources. They may then submit documentation and/or receipts for a reimbursement from their University fund. If students wish to utilize this, it is recommended that they speak with the department responsible for issuing the reimbursement to ensure that their purchase is approved and considered a reimbursable expense. For CSOs, they will be asked to justify their reimbursement against their approved annual funding budget. If they are unable to connect a purchase to a specific line-item from their budget, their reimbursement request may be denied.
 - a. The University will not honor reimbursement requests which include sales tax. Students are encouraged to use the University's tax free letter documentation to ensure they do not pay for tax, as they will not be reimbursed for that portion of their receipt.
 - b. Reimbursements will only be approved for current students who made the original purchase. The Student Involvement Center will not approve reimbursements to generic bank accounts, to non-students, or third-party requests (i.e. made on behalf of someone other than the requestor). This also includes third-party accounts in the student organization's name at SLU's US Bank branch.
3. Procurement Request (for check-issued payment and/or ACH deposit): Students can also request payment for organization expenses by working with a sponsoring department/unit and submitting a procurement request. Vendors who are due payment must submit the University's Master Vendor Form, and have a Vendor record created to be eligible for payment.
4. The University does not permit the use of person-to-person payment applications for collecting dues, payments, or fundraising efforts. Examples of these applications include but are not limited to "Venmo" or "CashApp." These applications are attributed to an individual person, cannot be shared within an organization's operations, and do not permit adequate accounting reporting.

5. If a student organization wishes to identify a means to collect payments, whether from ticketing or fundraising, they should contact the Student Involvement Center and request the use of SLU Marketplace, the University's approved ecommerce platform.

There are times when an organization may wish to contract services with an individual, agency, vendor, or alternative provider. When this occurs, the University requires a Standard Service Agreement (SSA) be issued to outline the legal responsibilities of the Vendor and University.

1. Students are not authorized to enter into formal and/or legal agreements on behalf of the University, which includes their student organization
2. Students should work with a sponsoring department or unit, or consult with their advisor, in order to formally initiate a SSA.
3. Because an SSA is a legal document issued on behalf of the University, it may need additional review by alternative University departments, including but not limited to Business & Finance, Risk Management or the Office of General Counsel. Because of this, it is recommended that SSA's be initiated a minimum of 60 days prior to the anticipated event/ service date.
4. The University utilizes an electronic contract management system, which is how agreements are tracked, exchanged and signed. All agreements signed on behalf of the University must be maintained in this electronic database.
5. Per the University's SSA, payment terms are listed as "Net 30;" meaning that payment is not due for 30 days from the SSA's execution date (the date of last signature).

Fundraising

To ensure the proper use of the University name in fundraising ventures, to minimize the inconvenience of donors and streamline communication by various University groups, and to assure proper adherence to state and municipal laws, the following policies are established. These policies and procedures pertain to fundraising ventures entered into by Student Organizations, either on or off campus.

Students who are organized as part of a fundraising team that is sponsored by a recognized Student Organization are exempt from needing to obtain approval from the Student Involvement Center for their fundraising activity, unless said approval is expressly outlined in the above sections of this Policy for the following:

Student Organizations seeking to collaborate in Fundraising activities with third parties and individuals from outside of the University community (e.g., profit shares) must obtain the prior written approval of the Student Involvement Center. At a minimum, requests for approval must contain a detailed written description of the proposed fundraising activities, the organization(s) who will benefit from the proceeds, and how the proceeds are to be used.

A raffle, or prize drawing is a type of lottery in which chances are sold, and the prizes awarded are goods or services rather than money.
